The facts in the case, it appears, are these:

Mr. Sweeney rented a stable on Cary street between Nieth and Tenth belonging to the defendants, for which he was to pay $800 per annum, the same amount paid by the former occupant of the building, whose lease Sweeney bought. Losing sight of this lease Messrs. Habliston & Brother raised the rent to $75 per month, and Sweeney refusing to pay it Messrs, J. Thompson Brewn fusing to pay it Messrs, J. Thompson Brewn & Co., agents for the defendants, sued out a distress warrant and had two nearly-new carriages levied on. One of them was sold and the other returned was sold and the other returned to Mr. Sweeney. The plaintiff now sues for the amount named for the loss of his carriage and for alleged damaged to his business. The defence claim that while the increase of rent sought to be made could not be made in the face of the lease, there was rent due at the time of the levy, which made this act legal.

One is that the City Council has adopted an ordinance providing that trains on the present connection-track through the city and by Monroe Park shall not be operated and by Monroe Park shall hot be operated by locomotives after April, 1890.

The second reason is that the present grades and curves are exceedingly heavy, and in the early market season the delay of the vegetable trains in Richmond is so great that they cannot be gotten to New York as early as they should. All through freights was to braken here, and the consequence have to be broken here, and the consequence is that it takes them several hours to get by Richmond, whereas with the easier grades that the Belt Line will afford the city can be ing hea son, H. The night services began at 7:30 and were opened by Rev. J. B. Hutson. There were no services held at any of the Baptist churches of the city, and all had representatives on the platform and in the body of the building. Mr. Wharton preached from Matthew xii., 3: "He that is not with Me is against Me." The sermon was a plain and practical but fervid and impressive discussion of the great question, "Whom will ye serve?" It made perfectly plain the already apparent fact that he that is not actively in the ficht for the Lord is to all intents and purposes against Him.

Train No. 51, consisting of engine, bag-gage-car, smoker, and two passenger-cars, left Columbus, Ga., at five minutes past I P.
M. for Atlanta. In rounding a curve near a trestle at 2 o'clock the engine and tender, through some cause as yet unknown, plunged down a forty-foot embankment, turning completely over, fataily injuring the engineer, T. C. Redfield, and seriously though not fatally injuring the fireman, Walter Mabone. The rest of the train remained on the track.

The engineer and fireman were attended to by Dr. J. C. Barnes, of Concord, Gr., who was on board the train, and Dr. E. M. Jameson, of Shilob, who arrived shortly afterwards in answer to a summons that had afterwards in answer to a summons that had been wired immediately after the accident. Although all was done that medical aid could do the engineer died an hour later without recovering consciousness.

WASPINGTON, March 25.—The funeral services of Justice Matthews interfered with the distribution of the spoils to-day. The crowd of hangers-on gathered as usual at the Ebbitt House, but they looked blue, and evidently they regard President Harrison as about the slowest and most deliberate man who had ever attempted to scatter political favors among the faithful.
